Introduction

Skills for Care makes sure people have the right skills to work in social care in the UK.

Social care is support you need to look after yourself. Social care workers include nurses, care home workers and social workers.

We have set up a group called the Workforce Expert Advisory Group.

This group is made up of people with a learning disability, autistic people and carers.

The group will work with us and Health Education England to get the right people into health and care jobs and help them do well.

Health Education England trains nurses and other staff in the NHS.

We are looking for a group or organisation to run the Workforce Expert Advisory Group.

Your group must include at least 1 person with a learning disability.

Running the Workforce Expert Advisory Group

You would:

- lead the meetings
- make sure the meetings talk about everything in the meeting plan
- get everyone to listen
- make sure everyone knows their job
- include everyone.

How to apply to run our group

To apply, you should send us:

- up to 2,500 words of easy to read writing saying:

- why your group or organisation would be good for the job

- how you have worked with people with learning disabilities before

- a recorded presentation about:

- your work in health and social care

- how you work together as a group to help people understand things.

Please send everything to:
policy@skillsforcare.org.uk

We need this by 12 o'clock midday on Sunday 06 June 2021.

If you are one of the teams we might give the job to, we will ask you all to do an online interview and activity on 10 and 11 June 2021.
