

Category information sheet

Most effective approach to integrated new models of care

This award recognises effective approaches to integrated, collaborative, partnerships which bring together workers from different settings to coordinate and/or deliver services focused on the individual, not the organisation or profession.

We're looking for partnerships who can demonstrate how they developed and sustained the new way of working, how they identified workforce development requirements and explain what evaluation has been done to modify and share the learning.

Those entering will need to evidence the benefits of the integrated way of working for the people they support.

Who should enter: collaborates across all sectors who can demonstrate effective integrated ways of working, including - but not limited to – health, housing, the arts, sports, public health and voluntary or community groups.

| Nomination questions (350 word limit) | Answers may include reference to: |
|---|--|
| How and why did the organisation identify the need to adopt an integrated approach to providing care and support? | <ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ how was the partnership created?▪ how were the barriers overcome? |
| How did you ensure you involved the right people to resolve the issue? | <ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ working with people who need care and support. |

| | |
|--|--|
| How did the organisation identify the integrated workforce development requirements? | <ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ workforce profiling▪ identification of skills gaps▪ identification of required behaviour/culture change. |
| How has the organisation developed and sustained this new way of working? | <ul style="list-style-type: none">▪ shared vision▪ leadership▪ working in partnership▪ engagement and communication. |
| What are the benefits of this approach for the people being supported? | |