

A summary of the adult social care sector and workforce in Birmingham

2017/18

Skills for Care, as the leading source of adult social care workforce intelligence, has created this summary because good quality information about the workforce is vital to help inform planning and decision making. This will contribute to the delivery of high quality social care services and improve outcomes for people who use these services, both now and in the future.

The information within this summary has been produced by Skills for Care using the National Minimum Data Set for Social Care (NMDS-SC). We use the data collected by the NMDS-SC to create workforce models that, in turn, allow for estimates of the whole adult social care workforce and its characteristics to be produced. The * notation throughout refers to use of raw data from the NMDS-SC.

Size and structure of the workforce in this area

In 2017 the adult social care sector in England had an estimated 21,200 organisations, 41,000 care providing locations and 1.6 million jobs. In Birmingham there were an estimated 30,000 jobs in adult social care split between local authorities (8%), independent sector providers (84%) and jobs for direct payment recipients (8%). As at September 2018 Birmingham contained 541 CQC regulated services; of these, 314 were residential and 227 were non-residential services.

The adult social care workforce is growing. Across England it has increased by 21% since 2009, and in the West Midlands region, by 9% since 2012.

If the workforce grows proportionally to the projected number of people aged 65 and over then the number of adult social care jobs in the West Midlands region will increase by 35% (from 170,000 to 229,000 jobs) by 2035. Recruitment and retention

Skills for Care estimates that the turnover rate in Birmingham was 33.3%, which was higher than the region average of 29.5% and similar to England at 30.70%. Not all turnover results in workers leaving the sector, around two thirds (63%) of those recruited came from within the adult social care sector, therefore although employers need to recruit to these posts, the sector retains their skills and experience.

Adult social care has an experienced 'core' of workers. Workers in Birmingham had on average 8.1 years of experience in the sector and 70% of the workforce had been working in the sector for at least three years.

Skills for Care estimates that in Birmingham, 5.6% of roles in adult social care were vacant, this equates to around 1,500 vacancies at any one time. This vacancy rate was similar to the region average, at 6.7% and similar to England at 8.0%.

Using both workforce intelligence evidence and our links with employers and stakeholders across England, we know that recruitment and retention is one of the largest issues faced by employers. We have many resources and tools available to employers to help with recruitment and retention issues. For more information please visit: www.skillsforcare.org.uk/recruitment-retention

Staffing overview

The estimated number of adult social care jobs in the Birmingham area was 30,000 including 2,400 managerial roles, 1,400 regulated professionals, 23,000 direct care (including 17,500 care workers), and 3,200 other-non-care proving roles.

The average number of sickness days taken in the last year in Birmingham was 4.3 (4.9 in West Midlands and 5.1 across England). With an estimated directly employed workforce of 25,000 this would mean employers in Birmingham lost approximately 109,000 days to sickness in 2017/18.

Around a quarter (26%) of the workforce in Birmingham were on zero-hours contracts.

Chart 1. Proportion of workers on zero hours contracts by area

Approximately half (49%) of the workforce worked on a full-time basis, 37% were part-time and the remaining 14% had no fixed hours.

Demographics

The majority (80%) of the workforce in Birmingham were female and the average age was 42.5 years old. Those aged 24 and under made up 10% of the workforce and those aged over 55 represented 20%. Given this age profile approximately 6,000 people will be reaching retirement age in the next 10 years.

Nationality varied by region, in England 83% of the workforce were British, while in West Midlands this was 87%. An estimated 81% of the workforce in Birmingham had a British nationality, 6% had an EU nationality and 13% had a non-EU nationality, therefore there was a higher reliance on non-EU than EU workers.
