We've received some great feedback on our preceptorship workshops

100% of previous attendees said they found the workshops helpful!

97% said they learnt something new, here's what some of them had to say:

- I feel more confident in processes and requirements around supporting preceptorships.
- It's given me a clear plan on how to support new nurses.
- I've learnt the purpose and value of the preceptorship process in supporting newly qualified staff, helping them build confidence and competence.
- I've learnt the difference between preceptor and preceptee, how to give positive feedback and understand the role of the teacher and learners.
- It's updated my idea around preceptorship in social care.

We also asked attendees what changes they planned to make in their practice after attending the workshops, here's what some of them had to say:

- I'll be able to advise on the training and resources available as well as the principles to be adopted.
- Start the process of setting up preceptorship in our organisation.
- I'll be reviewing our current documentation and making sure it aligns with the Skills for Care guidance. This will give us the confidence that what we have in place is based on best practice.
- This is a new endeavour for my organisation as we've never had a newly qualified nurse (NQN) before. Hopefully this will go well, and we'll employ more NQN's.
- Focus more on how the preceptee can get more involved in their learning.
